Workshops Across Europe & What's Next

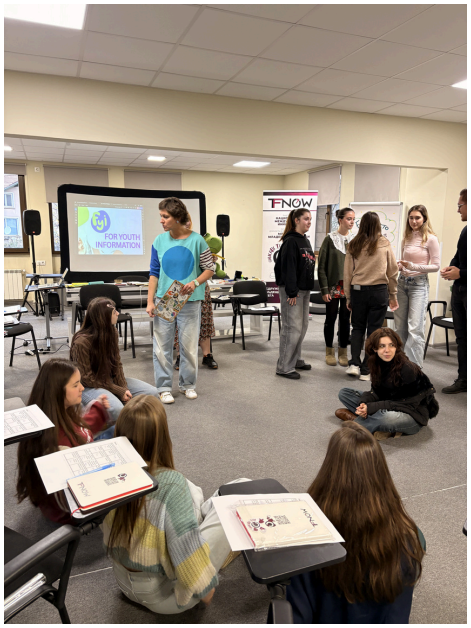

Workshops Across Europe

The FYI project continues to empower young people and youth workers with foresight skills that help them explore and shape the future.
In recent months, partners successfully organised pilot foresight workshops in:

- Bulgaria
- Slovenia
- Cyprus
- Estonia
- Slovakia

During the workshops, young participants had the opportunity to:

- explore trends and signals shaping the future
- imagine alternative future scenarios
- collaborate with peers on ideas for positive change
- develop initial actions and recommendations for the future

Through interactive activities and discussions, participants discovered how foresight can help them better understand challenges and actively contribute to shaping their communities.

What's Next?

The next phase of the FYI project focuses on turning foresight into action. Through upcoming activities, young people will have the opportunity to explore and apply foresight methods, analyse emerging trends affecting society and youth, and work together to develop ideas and policy recommendations for a more sustainable and inclusive future.

Join the FYI Community

FYI is building a European community of young people and youth workers interested in future thinking.
Join our Discord community to connect with others, exchange ideas, and explore future scenarios together.
